THE BRITISH KIDNEY PATIENT ASSOCIATION

Telephone: 01420 472021

Telephone: 01420 472022

The British Kidney Patient Association was founded in 1975. At that time there was no national association concerned with the plight of Britain's kidney patients, many of whom were struggling to survive bitter blows to their health, pride and finances by the need for thrice-weekly dialysis and the loss of their jobs. Now kidney patients, young and old, know that they can turn to the BKPA for support, advice and, perhaps more importantly, financial help and a much needed break with their families.

THE KIDNEY PATIENT GUIDE

The Kidney Patient Guide provides web-based patient information for renal patients, their families, health professionals and others interested in kidney disease. The site is described as follows: "It includes information not only on physical aspects of kidney failure - how the kidneys function, what happens when they don't, and the treatments available - but also on wider issues such as emotional, social and financial implications. They also have a Kidney Patient Guide Bulletin Board.
